Les AuCoin Our Congressman

Les AuCoin represents us in Congress. And fights for us in Oregon.

Born and raised and educated in Oregon, Les knows the people of the First District. And we know and trust him.

He's represented us for some time now. We've learned we can count on him for help on any matter, large or small, local and international. With the problems Oregon faces, we need that attention and leadership.

We know Les means it when he says his first goal is to bring economic stability to Oregon.

And we know he delivers. The results are everywhere. Because Les is our state's only representative on the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

That's why Les has our support, Democrat, Independent, and Republican.

And that's why we've sent Les to Congress six times.

And that's why we want him to stay there this time.

Les AuCoin. Six battles we could have lost without him.

1. Hanford

Les AuCoin is fighting to stop the federal government from building a nuclear waste dump in Hanford, Washington. He won funds to allow Oregon to conduct honest, scientific research on the dump's impact on our state. And he passed an amendment forcing the government to stop dumping the military's liquid nuclear wastes into the soil at Hanford. Les' opponent was the only member of the state senate to oppose a bill urging Congress to include Oregon in decision making on the Hanford dump.

2. Helicopters

Les AuCoin ended a 10-year local struggle by passing legislation to build a U.S. Coast Guard rescue helicopter station in Newport, where 49 lives have been lost at sea in recent years. He also won two high-speed rescue jets for Astoria fishermen.

3. Highways

Les AuCoin used his Appropriations Committee post to win $60 million in federal highway funds that are spurring an economic boom in eastern Washington County – 80 new companies and 36,000 new jobs.

4. Timber

Les AuCoin helped pass the timber contract relief bill that saved dozens of Oregon mills from going bankrupt. And kept hundreds of millworkers on the job.

5. Shipyards

Les AuCoin, from his position on the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, played a key role winning Navy contracts for the Portland shipyards worth $111 million and 2,000 jobs.

6. Arms Control

Les AuCoin convinced Congress and President Reagan to ban testing of anti-satellite weapons. The AuCoin amendment is the only successful arms control measure of the last six years.
